not long ago, i wrote a brief article about the curious rise of a new technology category, which for lack of a better term can be called happy-tech